Category:AutoCADPresident Donald Trump said Tuesday that U.S. military personnel killed Islamic State leader Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi on Saturday in Syria, although Baghdadi was killed by a "beyond-left-field" explosion. "He died like a dog," Trump said of Baghdadi, who died during a U.S. military raid in northwest Syria near the town of Barisha. The president was discussing the death of Baghdadi with reporters in the Roosevelt Room, where he was flanked by senior military officials. "They got him," Trump said. "If they didn't get him, they went into the room and got him. They got him. "And his body was mutilated because he put it up into a fire, and he burned people with it. He used it, and he used a belt on a young child, and he killed a young, beautiful — you'll see — woman who was a total wife and lover and she was married, and you'll see people in cages." Trump then said that Baghdadi's body was mutilated. "I would never kill a woman, a child, or a piece of garbage," Trump said. "I just wouldn't do that, and I don't think he would either, knowing his culture. A man who kills a woman, a child or a baby, he goes to jail and he sits for the rest of his life." Trump said the woman was 18 years old. He said it was difficult to believe because the physical description was "something you couldn't believe. But that's what happened," he said. Baghdadi was killed with a combination of coordinated drone strikes and an American raid, the Pentagon said. The U.S. military carried out several airstrikes in the al-Atareb region of northwestern Syria, an official said. "The operation was led by U.S. forces partnered with Syria's Kurds and their allies, as well as a unit of the Syrian Democratic Forces," the U.S. Central Command said in a statement. "Operations are ongoing, and
