This study developed a theory-based model of nurse-patient interactions in a group-based nursing care model (Group-BCN). An ecological perspective guided the focus on patients with diabetes as the research participants. Recruitment of 28 participants was guided by theoretical sampling and the coding process used 'coding frameworks' for each interview. From the data, three categories of nurse-patient interactions emerged: The 'Nurse-Patient as Work-Alike' category consisted of interactions where the participant was proactive and'ste
