

Gentoo Linux Highly Compressed Operating System Special LicenseQ: Creating an object from multiple strings I'm just beginning to learn Java and I have been trying to solve this problem for a long time. The problem is to recreate an object from its class name and some information about the object. For example, if I have the class named "Student" and I know it has four variables (ID, Name, Address, Major), I want to create an instance of a Student object and then create a new instance of a Teacher. I want to do this because I am creating a program to manage all the students and teacher in a high school. My code is below. I know that I have to use a switch statement. Thanks public class Main { public static void main(String[] args) { Student s = new Student(); s.setId(1); s.setName("john"); s.setAddress("address"); s.setMajor("math"); s.setInterest(true); s.setFavorite("gym"); s.setSkies(true); s.setHealthy(true); s.setSmoking(false); s.setFamily(true); s.setPhonetic("strsgsniem"); Teacher t = new Teacher(); t.setId(2); t.setName("jessica"); t.setAddress("address"); t.setMajor("math"); t.setInterest(false); t.
